The advancing tendency of the corn market, which has been shown in an aggreswive manner during the last few days, received a sharp check, but broke only after ceived a sharp check, but broke only siter at desperate resistance. May opened with sellers all the way from agge to its, the influences, used from the desire for profits, being favorable weather, liberal recents, including a good proportion of contract corn and indifferent caones. Phillips bought thornally and was trailed by country theorems, as usual. This support heat the market, at torthorn against the limiting liberally and was trailed by country theorests, as usual. This apport heat the market all forenced against the floridating pressure. May reacted from the logicalization of the following pressure. May reacted from the logical and held close under that have till associate freedom than had characterized the market carlier. The support weakened and May in consequence aropped to sake, closing weak, lightly under Saturday at large Receipts were 245 cars, 51 of contract grade. The withdrawal of the corn support, which has been the mainstay of wheat built for some time, had a serious effect on that naturally bearish market. May wheat opened by to be lower at 755,000-dec, document the influence of weak cabies, declared bearish world's statistics, liberal receipts. opened be to be lower at 75% 1.2% c, and the influence of weak cables, dorders, bearish world's statistics, liberal recent good weather and glowing reports of ct; conditions. SHEEP—There was the heaviest run of sheep here today that has been on sale for some time past. The demand on the part of packers, however, was quite liberal and as a result the market did not show much of any change. Good stuff of all kinds sold in Just about last week's notches, but owing to the liberal receipts buyers could discriminate against the common stuff, and in some cases that sold a little lower. Lambs sold as high as $5.30 and clipped wethers brought from $4.50 to $4.60. On anything good the market was fairly active and the big bulk of the stuff was sold in good season.

There were a good many stockers and feeders on sale today and as quite a few were carried over from last week, speculators were not very heavy buyers. The good kinds, however, were picked up in good season at fully steady prices, but the common kinds were neglected and hard to dispose of. Such kinds could be quoted 5glic lower. The demand from the country has been light for a week or more and as 213, 52 loc lower. MAY BUILD MILLS IN WYOMING. Eastern Capitalists Interested in Condition of Wool Industry, CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 1.—(Special)— A letter has been received from Frank B. Bennett of the National Shepherds' Bulletin. Boston, which states that eastern capitalists contemplate the establishment of woolen mills in Wyoming. Mr. Bennett asks for information relative to the wool clip of the state, condition of the business, location of the large waterways suitable for furnishing power, and cost of building stone. An effort will be made to have a woolen mill located in the state.

FEED LAMBS IN WYOMING

Experiment by State University Proves Feasibility of Plan.

UNNECESSARY TO SEND SHEEP ELSEWHERE

Fattening May Be Done on Home Ranches by a Diet of Alfalfa or Native Hay-Good Results Obtained on Open Ranges.

LARAMIE, Wyo., April 1 - (Special.)-The lamb feeding experiments at the State university experiment station were conciuded Saturday by Prof. Foster. The reice of the weather bureau. Crop conditions suit has not been reduced to figures, but enough is known, however, to warrant the statement that the fifty head of lambs fed on alfalfa made greater gains than the same number fed on native hay, aithough the latter came through in good condition, proving to the station officials that with care in the selection of the fodder and the feeding of the lambs they can be made to show splendid results with the native hay.

The experiments, the result of which has been anxiously awaited by sheepmen throughout the entire state and northern Colorado, were conducted in a novel manper. No large warm barns were provided and the animals were permitted to run out in all kinds of weather much the same as stock on the range would do. The results are more than satisfactory, as the fact has been proved that Wyoming lambs can be fattened for market in Wyoming, and it is not necessary, as many sheep raisers believe, to send them to the feed lots of northern Colorado to be placed in condition for the eastern markets.

Sheepmen of Wyoming, especially those of southern Wyoming, and not a few farmers in the irrigated districts, have long desired to feed lambs for market. A number of sheepmen have announced that if the experiments here were satisfactory they would raise more bay and alfalfa and feed their lambs instead. The result of the feeding business will be beneficial to the Wyoming farmer, as it will furnish a home demand for his hay and alfalfa. The area of cultivated land will also be greatly increased and its value doubled.

Several bands of lambs were fed at Wheatland this season and, it is understood, the experiments were satisfactory. A large number of farmers there have said they will feed lambs next fall and in all probability a big feeding station will be established there.
